

MyDC Lawyer Terms and Conditions (“Terms”)

Thank you for your interest in MyDCLawyer. By using MyDCLawyer to search for an attorney, you accept the following Terms.

1. MyDCLawyer uses an automated process to match you to an attorney based on similarities between the description of your legal issue and the attorney's description of their practice and expertise. If there is an attorney whose experience matches the description of your needs, you will be able to view their MyDCLawyer profile and contact them directly. The attorney will not receive your information unless you contact them and therefore you can choose whether to contact an attorney and which one(s).
2. There is no guarantee that MyDCLawyer will match you with an attorney willing to take your case or represent you. An attorney referred to you through MyDCLawyer is not required to represent you.
3. The D.C. Bar does not store the description of your legal matter except for the limited purpose of assessing and making improvements to the system. The system saves the information you provide for statistical purposes, and we will use your email address to send you the results of the search. We will not sell your information; however, we may contact you to collect feedback regarding your experience using MyDCLawyer.
4. If you retain an attorney referred through MyDCLawyer, the attorney-client relationship, including legal fees, is strictly between you and the attorney. Referring you to an attorney does not create an attorney-client relationship between you and the D.C. Bar. The D.C. Bar is not affiliated with any law firm, law office, or individual attorney; and MyDCLawyer attorneys are not employees, agents, or representatives of the D.C. Bar. The D.C. Bar will not resolve any disputes between you and an attorney referred through MyDCLawyer.
5. The D.C. Bar is not responsible for referrals made through MyDCLawyer, the negligence or acts of unprofessional conduct committed by an attorney referred through MyDCLawyer, or the acts or omissions of you or a referred attorney. The D.C. Bar does not recommend, endorse, or represent the fitness or suitability of a matched attorney for your legal needs.

If you have any questions, please contact the D.C. Bar at mydclawyer@dcb.org.
